Intro

After crash-landing on Mars following a failed expedition beyond the Solar System, Dott finds himself caught between a Martian rock and a hard place. Being deserted on the red planet, he can either accept his doom, or make the best of his situation!

Explore the world and harvest it's resources to craft powerful tools. Fell powerful monsters roaming the world for loot. Express your creative side with hundreds of different materials for building. There's a lot to do while stranded on this incredibly-inaccurate depiction of Mars.

This guide will give you a thorough explanation on the mechanics of the game. It will also contain guides for every bossfight and some secrets! Use the table of contents on page 1 to find what you specifically need. Note that since this game has over 50 hours worth of content, not everything can be written down in this walkthrough. You are encouraged to explore and try new things beyond what you will be taught here.

Tutorial

In this part of the guide, you will receive an introduction on what to do in survival mode. When starting out your world, things may seem overwhelming if it's your first time playing. But worry not; this chapter will give you some direction.

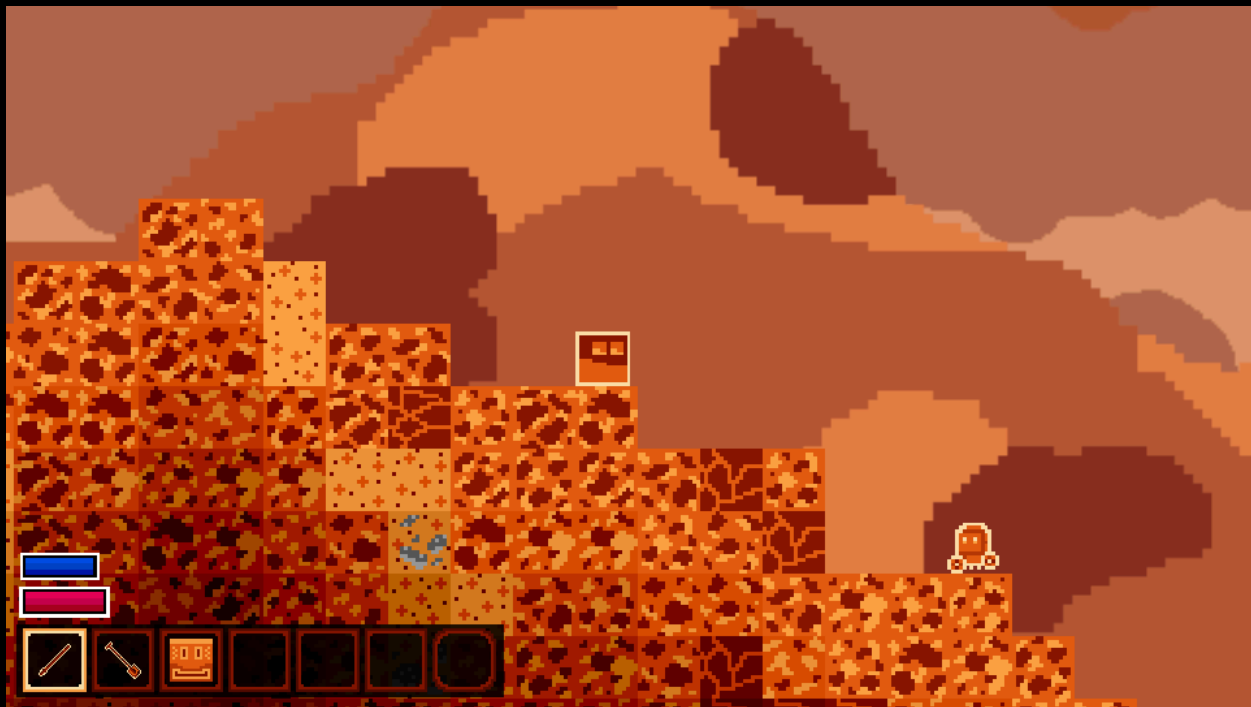

Let's create a world! Click the box at the top to change the name of the world, or click the die on the upper right corner to get a random one.

- Pick your gamemode. (For this walkthrough, we are playing survival mode. You may also choose to play hardcore mode, where enemies are much stronger and there is also exclusive loot, or creative mode, where you will not need this part of the walkthrough.)
- You can change the icon that your world's save file will have on the bottom-left.
- You can enable "keep inventory" and/or "bonus chest" for a more casual experience if you'd like. Keep inventory will prevent your items from dropping upon death, and bonus chest will generate a loot chest at the spawn point to give you a headstart.
- The "world type" and "world biome" options can be adjusted to generate unique exciting worlds. These are mainly for creative mode as you can not progress through the main campaign in some world modifications. The "generate structures" checkbox must be enabled as well to progress through the main campaign.

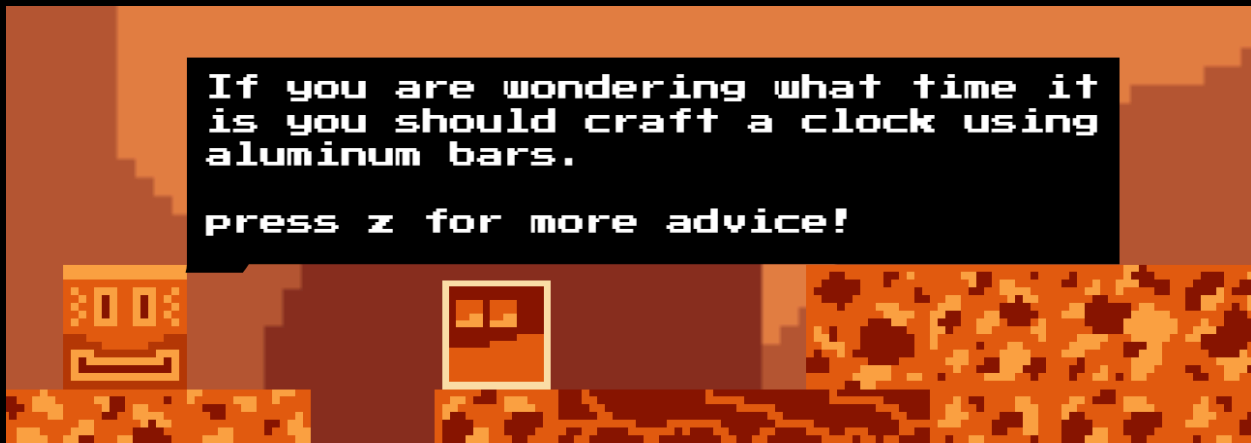

When you are done customizing your world, click "Create World"!

This is what you will see upon loading a world for the first time. On the right of this screenshot is a common Treader enemy, who you can easily slay with your flint sword (use your weapon by clicking.)

You can mine blocks by using your flint shovel. Select the shovel by using the scroll wheel or by clicking the slot that the shovel is on. (You can also select inventory slots with the number keys, from 1-7)

Use your flint shovel by clicking + holding on a block to dig it. You'll have to get a better mining tool soon if you want to mine valuable resources.

Also in your hotbar is a station of guidance, which you can select and place down by clicking. He will give you some extra advice if you're feeling lost.

Now, let's open the inventory by pressing E!

You are now in the inventory. To the left is where all of your items are stored, with some special slots for certain equipment above. You can click on these slots to find out what they are used for.

To the right is the crafting menu. To navigate the crafting menu, you can use the scroll wheel or arrow keys. Click a recipe to learn more about it.

You can change categories by clicking one of the 10 small icons. You can quickly switch categories by pressing c and x. If you'd like, you can sort the recipe list by craftable. You will also find a recommended list that is frequently updated to show you which recipes you should craft next. Finally, you can search for a recipe with the magnifying glass in the bottom-right.

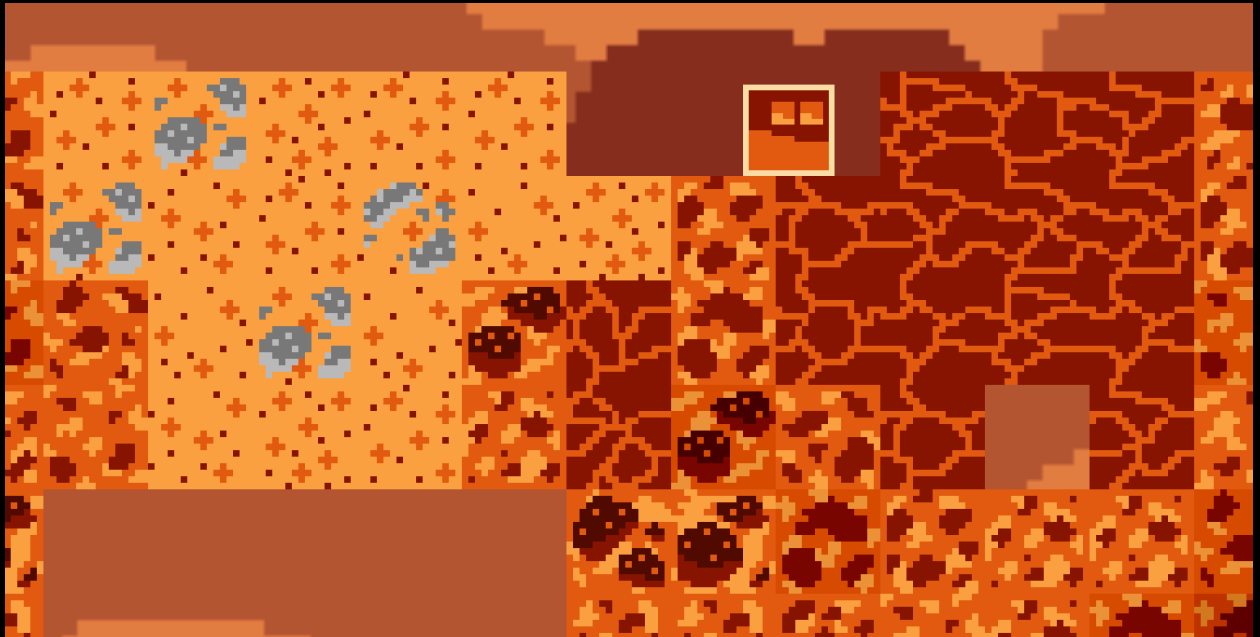

For now, let's focus on crafting a crafting table. This will let us build other crafting stations and other helpful recipes!

Click the crafting table recipe to select it. You can view it's description and what ingredients it needs here. If you can't find the recipe, it is in the Stations category, found by clicking the furnace icon.

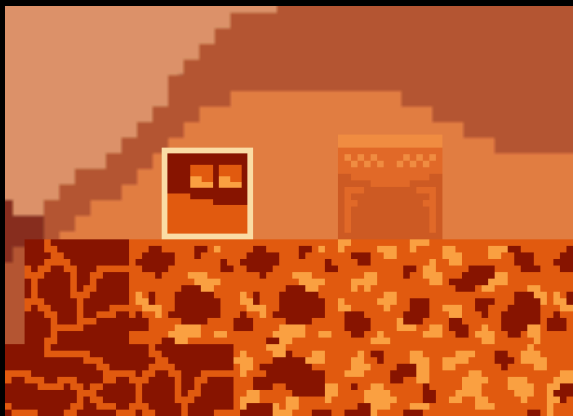

Looks like we need stone to craft this... let's gather some as well as some other materials.

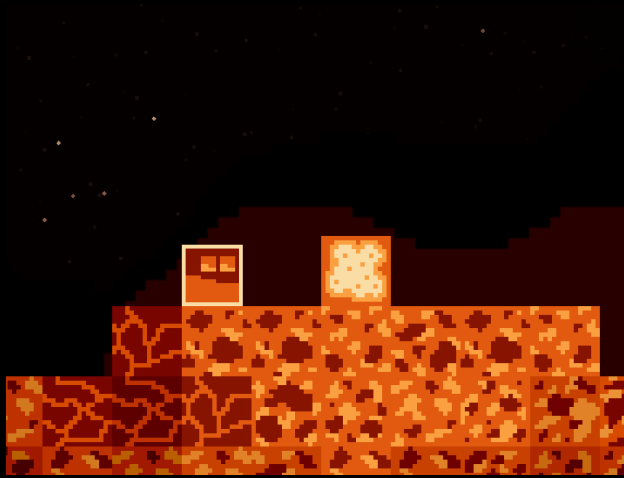

Stone is easily accessible and is the dark brown material we see everywhere. Flint is found in dirt and is best identified by it's dark rocky texture. You may have to travel a little bit underground to find it. Additionally, keep your eye out for dust and aluminum, shown on the left They are good resources to gather.

Once you have some resources let's open the inventory again. Select the crafting table recipe and then press the craft button.

Great! Your new crafting table will be in your inventory. If you need to move it to your hotbar, you can drag it to the slot you want to move it to. Let's exit the inventory and select the crafting table and place it by clicking. The table must be placed above a solid block.

We now have access to new recipes! Let's make three important items: lights, platforms, and bricks.

You may notice your world beginning to go dark eventually. During nighttime or while exploring underground, it can be hard to see without lights! You can craft them by combining dust and flint.

Additionally, you can craft other types of lights later on. Bring a lot of them when you go on adventures underground! Additionally, beware of enemies spawning more frequently at night.

Platforms are great for adventuring and can be crafted with just dirt and stone. They do not have to be connected to a block to be placed down unlike most items.

You can drop through platforms by pressing S. You can also craft other styles of platforms to spice up your builds.

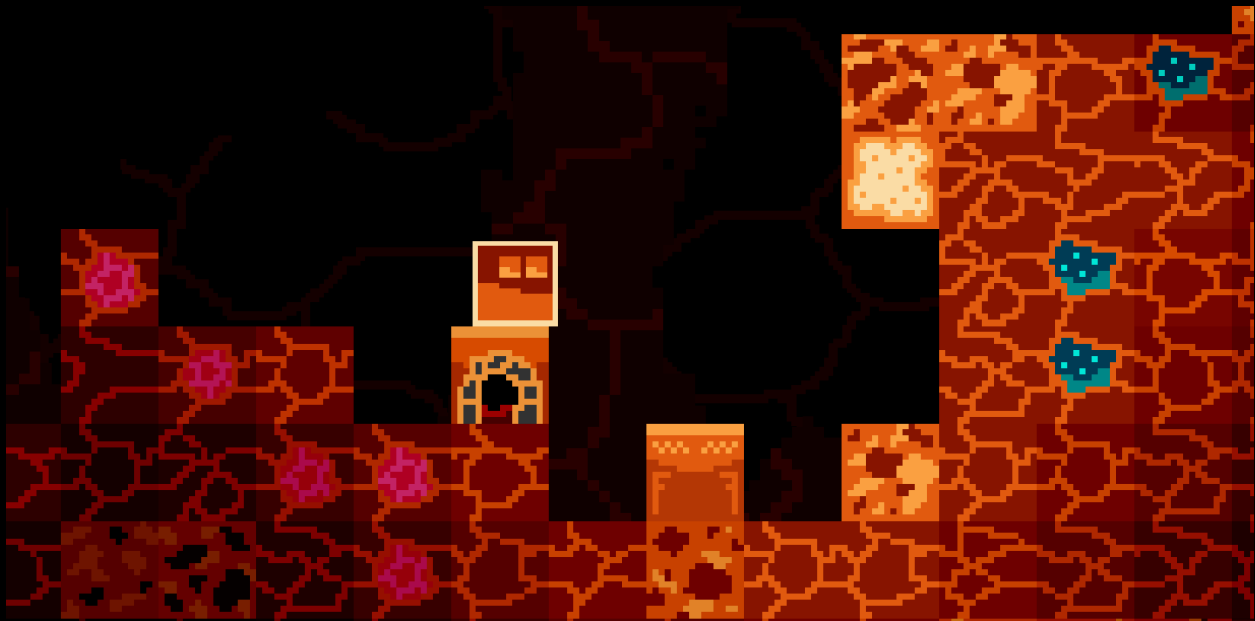

Bricks are the backbone of creative structures. There are hundreds of different types, but you can craft normal bricks with just stone.

You will need to be near your crafting table to craft this item. You can find them in the bricks category (click the brick icon in the crafting menu.)

Now that you have been introduced to a few different key items, let's make more crafting stations. These will let us craft most of the recipes in the game!

Look for a cave that leads you underground.....bring your crafting table with you as well, since you will need to be near it to use it.

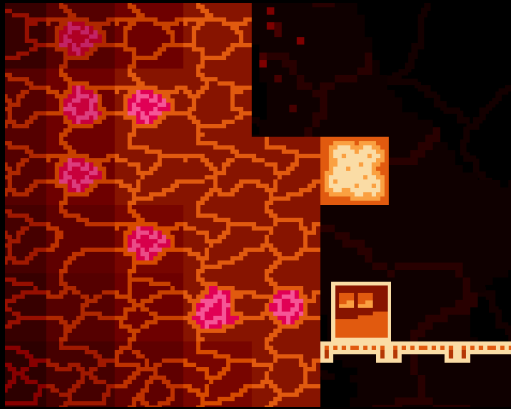

Let's craft a furnace (the crafting station that Dott is currently standing on.)

Go underground to find coal, best identified by it's blueness. Gather some flint and stone too. We can use our furnace to smelt aluminum bars and other special items! Each recipe that uses the furnace also requires some coal, so make sure to gather lots of it.

Next, we should craft a forgery so we can upgrade our tools and craft armor.

Gather some aluminum and coal, and then go to your furnace and open the crafting menu to smelt aluminum bars. Then, craft the forgery! With this new station, we can now craft powerful new tools and some protective gear as well.

Keep adventuring underground until you find some pink rubies in the ground. You should mine 15 of them, so you can make some new tools and a new crafting station! Make sure you have some flint as well.

Once you have enough ingredients, go to your forgery and craft the ruby tools. If you cannot find them, they are under the tools section, found by clicking the sword icon.

Now we're really making progress! Next, craft a chiseling station. If you cannot find it, it is under the stations section, found by clicking the furnace icon.

The chiseling station gives you the ability to create new types of bricks. Every brick has a chiseled, pillared, and floored variant, which can add some uniqueness to your builds!

To finish off this tutorial, we will see what more is left for us underground and then craft armor.

You will encounter many mobs on your adventure. Hover over a mob to see their health and additional information about them.

Some enemies, such as the spider on the right, are passive and will not hurt you.

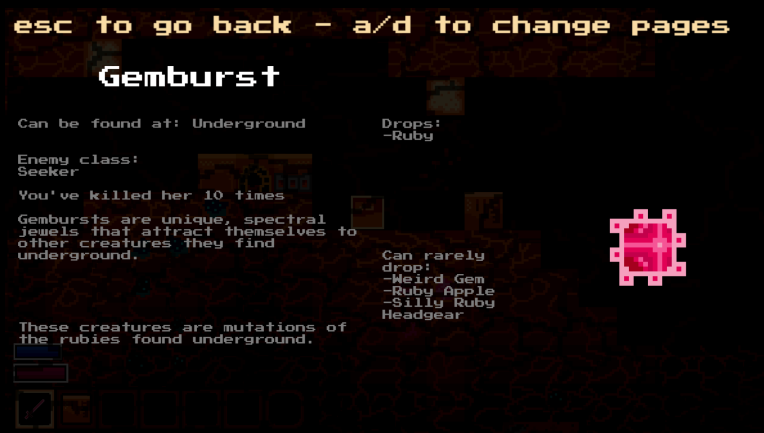

They can also be caught with a net, which can be crafted with some flint and some string (dropped by the spider seen in the picture.)

If you want to show off the critters you've caught, you can craft a terrarium for them. Every critter terrarium has a different recipe but they all use a bottle, crafted from glass. You can make glass with dust while at a furnace. These terrariums are found in the miscellaneous category, found by clicking the paintbrush icon. Crafting all 24 terrariums will grant you a special achievement!

You can learn more about the mobs you encounter in the enemy encyclopedia. This can be accessed by pausing the game with esc or q and then clicking the encyclopedia button.

You will need to defeat/catch a mob first before you can read their description. You can also view their origins and what they rarely drop after you've defeated them 10 times.

You may have found some structures on the surface or underground with loot chests. You can hover your cursor over the chest and press z to open it.

These loot chests are packed with many awesome resources for us to take! You can drag the contents of the chest to your inventory or you can press up to quickly transfer the selected item between inventories. You can press z or e to close the chest.

There are also 3 useful buttons to help you transfer items more quickly. The fill chest button will fill the chest with your inventory and the empty chest button will move all of the chest's contents to your inventory. Finally, the restock chest button will refill the chest with anything in your inventory that is already in the chest. Use these shortcuts to your advantage when sorting out your loot.

Have you seen these pink glowing heart-shaped blocks underground? These are heart fragments. Collect 6 of them and then you can craft a heart container to increase your maximum life!

You can go to the pause menu and check the World Map to see if there are any nearby heart fragments. You will also see bright dots in undiscovered areas of the map. These are high-energy signals and you will find interesting anomalies at these areas.

You can also see where you currently are and the locations of any important structures you encountered. Lastly, you can check the World Map to see the last spot you died at. This is useful for relocating the items that you dropped upon death.

Now that we have explored underground a bit more we should craft some protection before we decide to go deeper or explore new biomes.

The rockrollers and jetpackers that you encounter will drop martian shells when defeated. We can use that along with some moss (the greenish stone you will find underground) to craft some armor. With this armor, we will not take as much damage as before, allowing us to explore with less caution!

Make sure you're next to your forgery when crafting armor or tools. Select the Moss Hide recipe and craft it. If you cannot find it, the recipe is under the armor category.

If you have smelted a lot of aluminum bars, you could instead craft the Aluminum Gear. This piece of armor gives more protection than the Moss Hide but it will make you move more slowly.

Once you have crafted your armor, move it to the armor slot to equip it! We will now be able to endure more hits with this protective gear!

The two slots above the armor slot are for vanity items. These do not affect your character's stats and are purely cosmetic. Some vanity items, named accessories, can be put in the top-right slot and they will stack on top of other items. Combine vanity items to give your character some flair!

We are almost done with the tutorial! Since you have been exploring underground for a while, your inventory is likely almost full. Let's go back up to the surface so we can build a home to store our valuables in.

If you want to return home quickly you can use a restoring potion. You might've found one in a loot chest underground. If you don't have any, you can craft them yourself later on with the brewery crafting station.

Now that we're back on the surface let's build a base! You can use your chiseling station to craft variations of bricks that'll make your house stand out. You can also craft background walls which will make your base feel even more like home.

Let's place down our crafting stations, some chests, and some lights. You can craft chests with flint, dirt, and stone.

If you'd like, you can also craft doors and signs. Doors keep enemies from entering your home and you can write anything you want on a sign by pressing z.

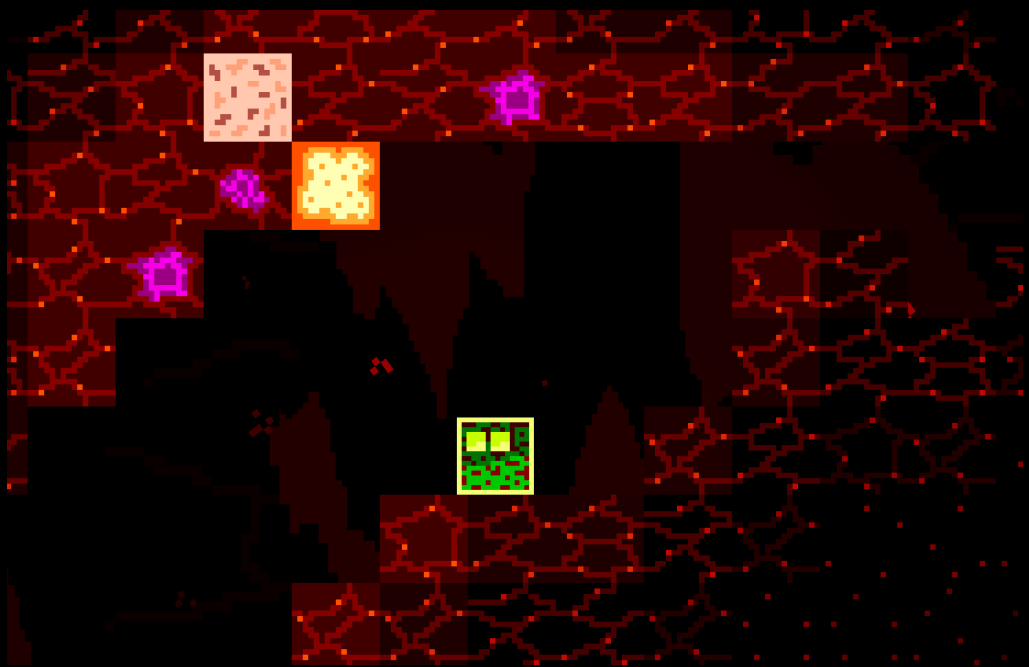

You have completed the tutorial for Martian Mayhem! Good work. Now, go on and explore the world!

If you want more information about the game, you can continue reading for an extended tutorial that will explain the rest of the game's mechanics. However, if you are feeling courageous, feel free to skip past that part.

Extended Tutorial

This part of the guide will teach you more about survival mode. You will be introduced to the game's many weapon types and some different biomes as well!

Now that we have built a base that we can return to, we should explore further underground. Deposit any excess resources into your chests and then go back underground. Keep going down until you discover the mantle.

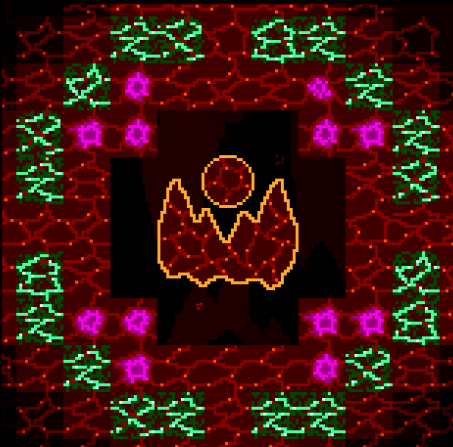

The mantle is very dark and you will need lights to be able to see where you're going. This layer of the world also has tougher enemies and more valuable loot chests.

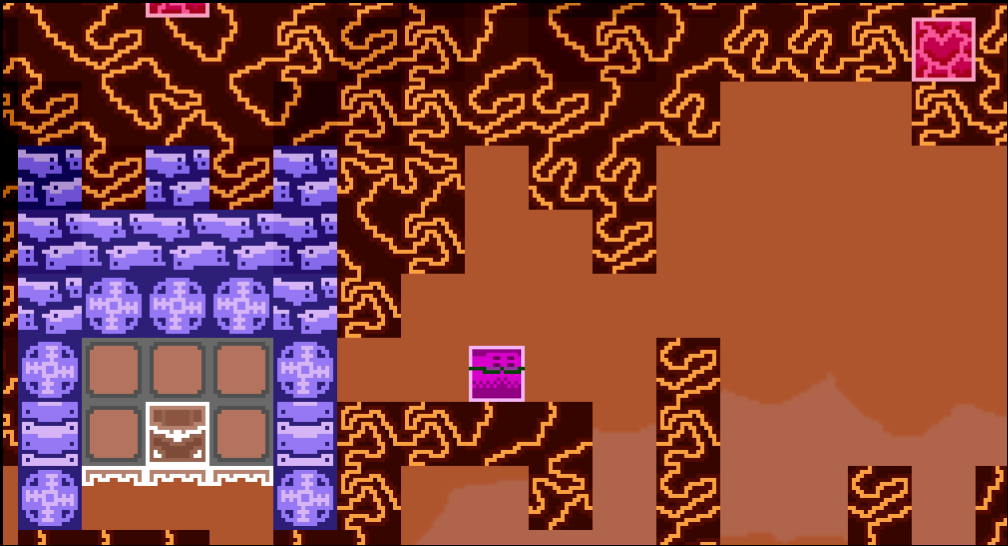

You'll be able to make even better tools than before with the resources in the mantle. Here are a few that you can craft. You can find these in the armor and tools categories of the crafting menu respectively.

After doing enough exploring, you'll eventually stumble across a mantle shrine. This is a special station and only certain items can be crafted here. If you found one, be sure to remember where it is so you can come back to it later. Let's go back to the surface now.

You will also be able to check the world map to locate any mantle shrines that you've discovered.

If you build your way up high enough, you'll reach the top of the world! The sky holds some heart fragments as well as some loot chests. Beware of space monsters and mega meteoroids, as they can easily catch you off-guard.

Keep adventuring to the left or right and you'll reach the solar and lunar biomes. These have new resources and enemies but have more difficult challenges waiting for you.

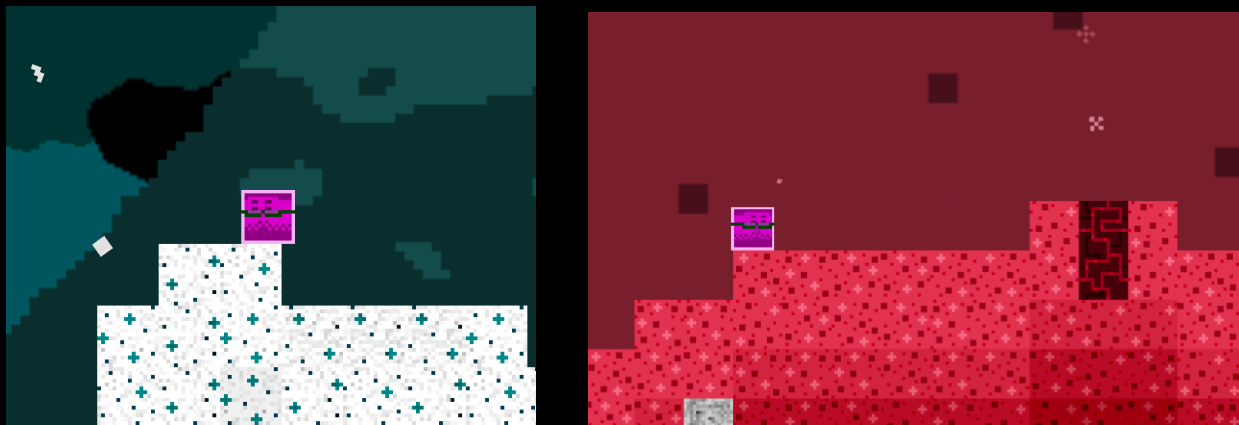

You may see gold and silver in these biomes, but you will not be able to mine them yet. Additionally, you may come across some structures with heart containers that also cannot be broken yet. However, you will be able to mine the gems underground, which can be used to craft new weapons and other important items.

Don't break the suspicious looking pieces of stone! They will summon golems, strong enemies that can quickly end your journey.

If you find the solar and lunar biomes are too difficult to explore, you can come back to them later on when you have stronger tools.

Adventure even further left or right, and you'll find the desert and tundra biomes. Currently, there is nothing progression-wise for you to obtain here.....you will need to advance to a further chapter to get anything useful from these places.

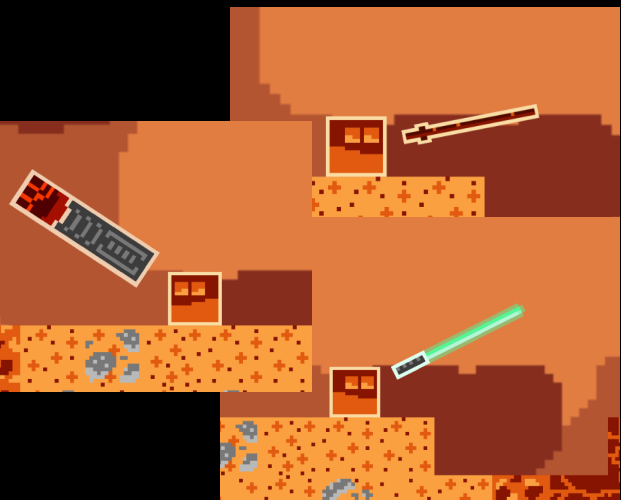

You can explore the surface of the desert and tundra biomes freely without having to worry about any major threats. Even at nighttime, these biomes are quite calm. Don't go underground, however! You may run into enemies that could kill you in a single hit!

After you've done enough exploring, you should go back home. If you got some new resources, check the crafting menu to see what new stations/tools/armor you can make.

In Martian Mayhem there are 3 types of weapon classes—melee weapons, ranged weapons, and magic weapons. It's good to take advantage of all the different weapon types so you will be equipped to defeat any enemy!

Melee weapons are great for close-ranged combat. While the flint sword that you start with will attack with a poking movement, most swords will be swung when you use them.

Additionally, fists are another melee weapon that you can use. While their punch is slower than the swing of a sword, they deal more damage and cover more range. Additionally, fists can pierce, meaning that they can deal damage to multiple enemies in one swing.

Ranged weapons will allow you to keep a distance from strong enemies, but it can be harder to hit smaller targets. Guns deal a good amount of damage, but they require ammunition to work. You can craft different types of ammo that do different amounts of damage to go with your gun. Some items are throwable and will deal damage, like the ruby shurikens that you may find in underground chests.

Rings are ranged weapons that return to you when they are thrown, like a boomerang. Rings can pierce through enemies just like fists can. At this point in the game, you can craft a ring with some emerald and a rainbow shard, dropped by space monsters.

Magic weapons will consume mana when used but they are very versatile. Some staves will fire projectiles when used, like the sapphire staff, which you can craft at this point in the game.

Other staves can summon minions that will hover over your cursor and attack enemies. Some staves will do other things, such as the princess wand, which will heal you when used.

Most staves required mythic cubes to be crafted, which are dropped by mythic butterflies. These butterflies spawn rarely at night.

Finally, you can increase your maximum mana by crafting mana containers using mythic cubes and other resources. There are also some trinkets that you can find & craft that will enhance your magical abilities!

Once you've crafted some new weapons, get ready to fight the game's first boss, the Power Meteor. He is summoned by using an aluminum horn.

You can craft this horn at a mantle shrine, using 5 aluminum bars, 5 mantle blood stones, and 1 possessed meteorite, dropped by mega meteoroids!

There are many things you can do to prepare for this bossfight. First, make sure to equip any trinkets you find in loot chests underground. You can also craft some trinkets at a forger or mantle shrine.

Trinkets give your character many different boosts that will help you on your journey. You can equip up to 3 of them at a time! Some enemies have trinkets that they will rarely drop.

Consider the following: Trinkets that increase the same stat will not stack with eachother, so don't waste your slots trying to combine them. For example, if 2 of your equipped trinkets increase your defense, only 1 of them will have an effect.

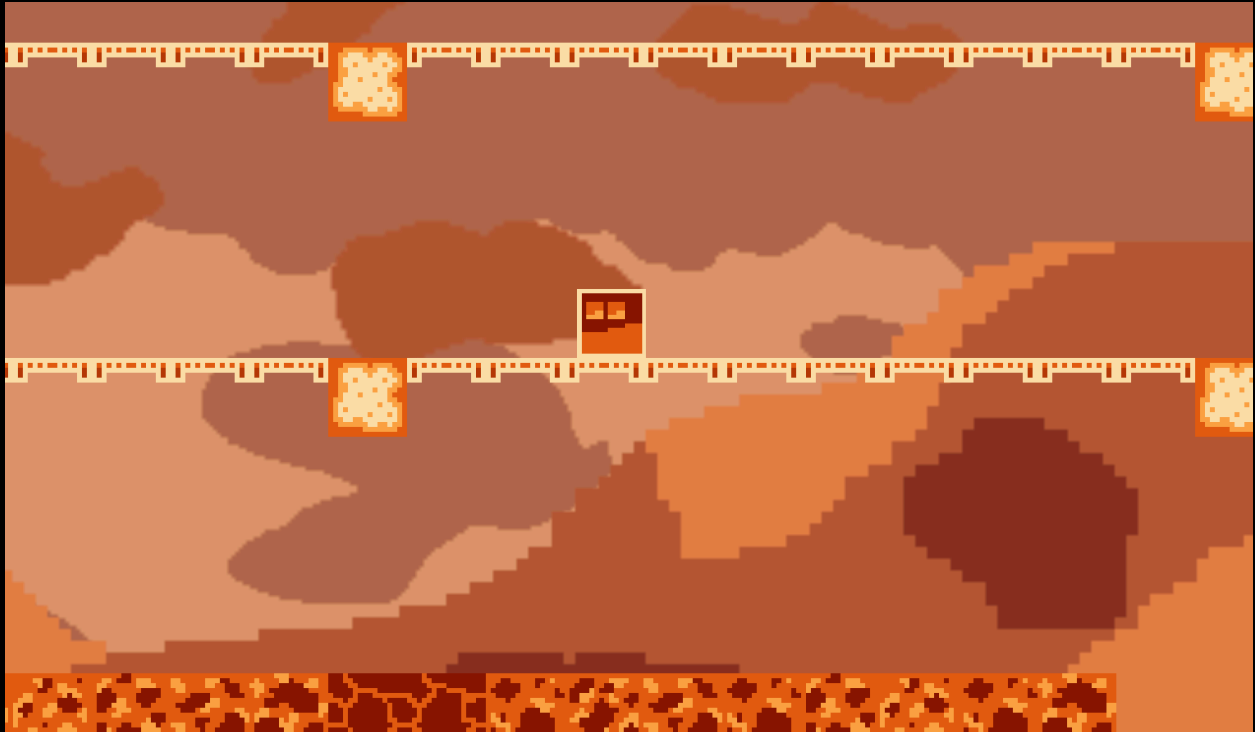

Next, you can gather potions to use in the bossfight. While you can find potions in loot chests, you can also brew your own at a brewery crafting station.

You can craft a brewery using stone, amethysts, sapphires, and emeralds. Bottles for potions are crafted with glass, which is crafted from dust at a furnace.

Beetles and flies are crucial ingredients in crafting potions, so be sure to use a net to catch any critters that you encounter!

Lastly, you should create an arena to fight the boss in. An arena will give you enough space to maneuver around the boss easily and see around you at night!

Here's an example of a good arena. It has 2 layers of platforms and occasional lights for when it gets dark. While building one is not required, it is recommended to make the bossfight easier and it shouldn't take too long to set up.

When you're ready to fight the Power Meteor, go to your arena and arrange your hotbar to include all of the weapons & potions you need. Then, use your aluminum horn! Good luck!

You have completed the extended tutorial! Fantastic work!

Once you defeat the Power Meteor, you will enter chapter 2 and unlock many new recipes. Now, you must start exploring the game by yourself...there are 3 more bosses that await you!

More content will be added to this guide soon. Thank you for reading!!
